

On paper, shocking success

A paper earthquake is no more dangerous than a paper tiger.

But, Friday's earthquake drill involving communities throughout Alameda County may help save lives and minimize damage in case of the real thing.

Fire officials in Livermore and Pleasanton termed the exercise a real success, but it wasn't without its theoretical headaches.

Organized by the Countywide Bay Area Systems Exercise (BASE - 76), the 7:30 a.m. test involved a hypothetical quake 8.5 on the Richter scale.

The epicenter was along the San Andreas Fault, not far from the site of the 1906 San Francisco quake's epicenter. Lateral shocks were projected to create havoc in the Tri-Valley area.

On paper initial damage reports showed malfunctions of traffic signals, traffic tie-ups on I-580, telephone communications impairments, street bucklings and other nuisances.

As police and fire personnel were theoretically recalled to regroup and coordinate their efforts, more serious calls were scheduled to tax the brains of safety personnel.

Livermore Fire Chief Jack Baird described the efforts of the personnel at the Emergency Operating Center on Rincon Ave.

He told of a reported derailed train near El Charro Road. No injuries were reported in that test.

A series of major fires reportedly broke out, including a 1,000 gallon fuel tank on Ladd Avenue, a fire at Granada High School and a fire at the Hansen Propane Plant east of Livermore.

As emergency forces were calling for aid from the county fire patrol, a leak was reported at a quarry west of the city. The water reclamation plant experienced a power failure with gauges unable to record incoming flows and possible chlorine leaks endangering the community.

To make matters worse, a failure of a Zone 7 holding reservoir was reported — not severely threatening flood, but enough to endanger fire fighting water supplies.

Large grass fires were reported throughout the area.

In the downtown area there were reports of downed utility poles, lots of debris, partial building failures (partial wall collapses and severe cracks) and numerous injuries.

How did the city handle it?

"The object was to test our emergency plans and procedures and test adequacies of back up systems such as communications," said Baird. "We also were testing the concept of utilizing our available resources, knowing full well that in a major disaster getting outside assistance will take some time."

"I think we survived it very well," said the fire chief. He termed it an improvement over previous drills.

If it had been a real disaster, he speculated upwards of 100 deaths and several hundred injuries requiring hospitalization would have been the outcome, not to mention extensive damage.

Pleasanton Fire Chief Bert Cherry reported similar, but less extensive, theoretical damages in his community.

Major fires engulfed four buildings in the downtown area and several condominium homes in the West Los Positas area.

Safety agencies in Pleasanton would have been hampered by a stalled train which "blocked almost every crossing in the city."

"It certainly taxed us," he said. "We were locked into our own operation because of disturbed telephone communications, causing a switch to ham radio operators."

Golden Gate University in San Francisco will make formal evaluations. Livermore Emergency Operations Assistant Jean Tucker was scheduled to discuss the evaluation with Harry King, a representative of the state's Office of Emergency Services.

Cherry said his department held a small scale test in January in preparation for this test. "We learned some things ... our system works pretty well."

Area jeweler is apparent crash victim

TRACY — A search continued yesterday for the body of Earl A. Pinard, 65, long time valley resident and jeweler, who crashed into a quarry pond near the Tracy Airport late Thursday while piloting his homemade aircraft.

The San Joaquin County Sheriff's office was conducting the search in a three-acre pond owned by the Lone Star Industries in which the water's depth ranges from 15 to 80 feet. A spokesman for the sheriff's department said the search will continue today if Mr. Pinard's body is not found before nightfall Saturday.

The quarry pond is about one-half mile south of the airport.

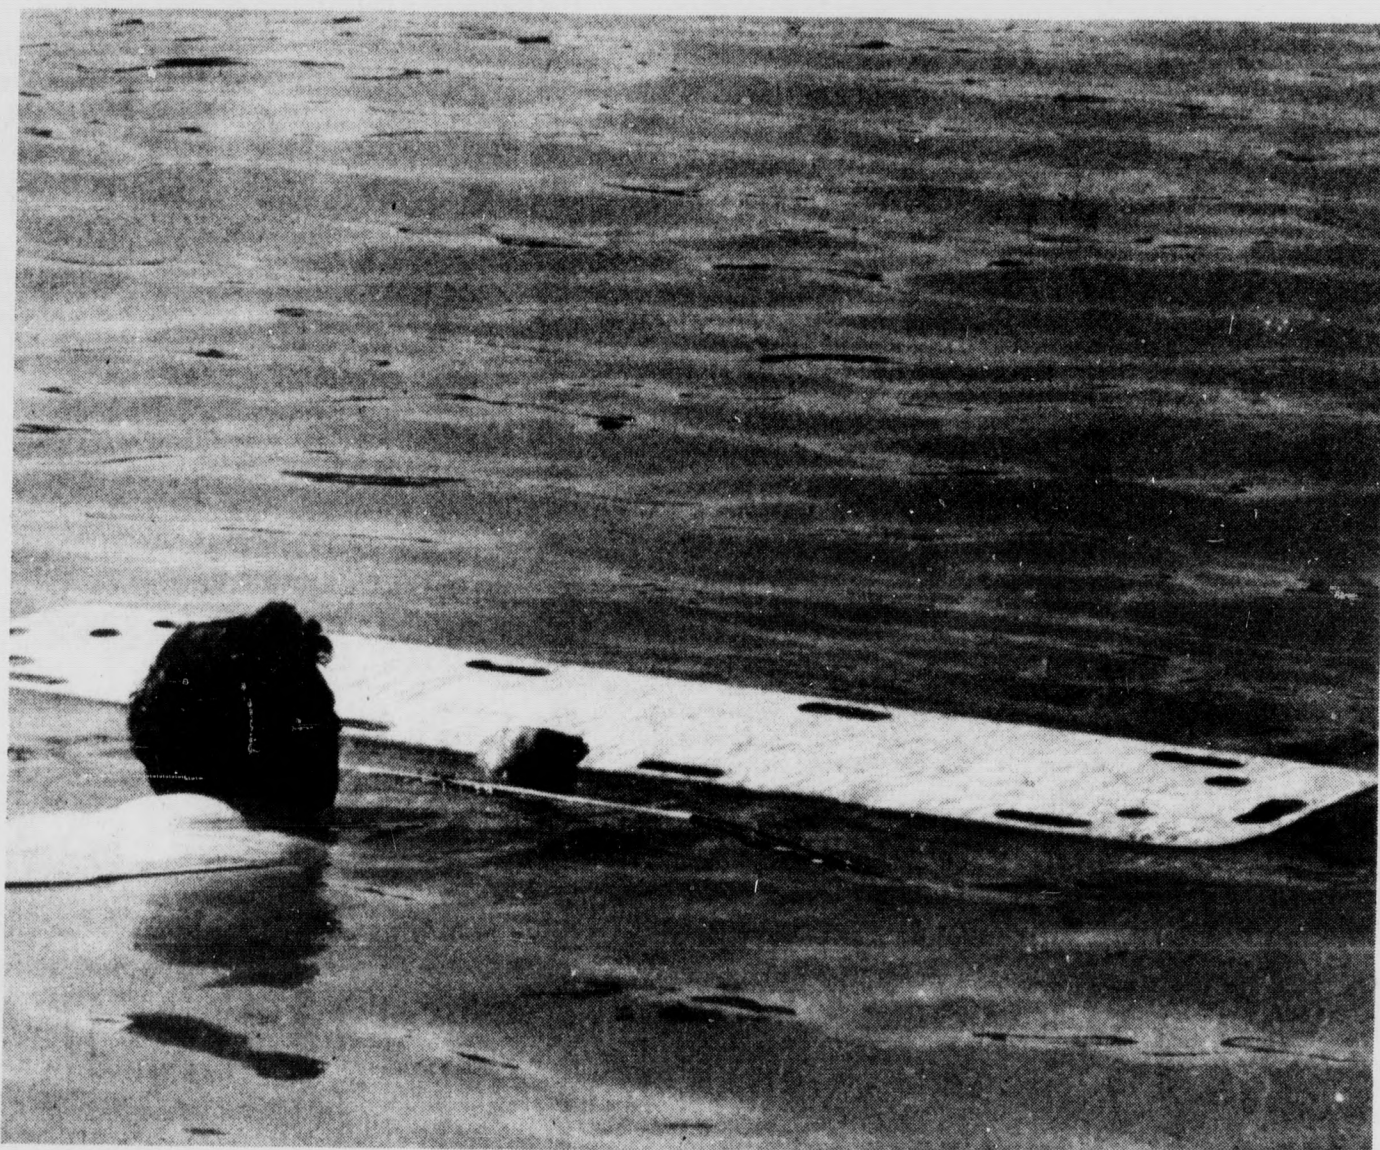

Pinard, who had been in the jewelry business for many years in Pleasanton and Livermore, was flying a single-seat bi-plane (The Midget Flying Flea) which he had constructed over a period of years. It was the aircraft's first test flight.

Witnesses said the plane had been up and landed once at the airport and Pinard was making his second test flight when, at an elevation of about 400 feet, the small aircraft dipped to one side, rolled left, and nose dived into the pond. Divers recovered the wreckage and Pinard's cap but could not locate his body.

One of Pinard's two sons, Eugene, 29, a resident of Pleasanton, had accompanied his father to the airport and witnessed the tragedy.

Investigation of the crash was being conducted by the Federal Aviation Agency and FAA inspectors were on the scene Friday morning. A report is expected later this week.

A Lone Star truck driver, Bernard Etcheverry, who witnessed the crash, said, "It dipped once and then veered to the left when I saw a splash. I kept waiting for him to pull out of it. He never did."

The truck driver said tower operator James Morford at the airport ran to the lake and the two men dove in and swam to the top wing where they found Pinard's cap floating on the surface.

Pinard and his wife, Angel, resided at 3545 Vineyard Ave., Pleasanton. He was a former flight instructor for civilian pilots near Watsonville during World War II.

Well known throughout the Pleasanton and Livermore areas, Pinard had sold his Pleasanton jewelry business to George Torres in February, 1975. Torres said yesterday that Earl Pinard was one of the most popular businessmen in the area and will surely be missed by his many friends. He was a former member of the Pleasanton Lions Club and the Retail Jewelers Association and was a registered gemologist.

Pinard Jewelers in Livermore is located at 142 S. L Street.

LIVERMORE — Barry Braeseke of Dublin, accused of shooting to death his father, mother and paternal grandfather in their 11418 Betlen Drive home late Monday, made a brief court appearance Friday morning to meet his court-appointed lawyer and hear Judge Mark Eaton continue the matter to Sept. 16.

Looking more alert than during his first court date Thursday when he appeared groggy, Braeseke looked on as Judge Eaton heard motions from the suspect's new lawyer, James Leonard Crew of Hayward.

Crew is a criminal law specialist who won an acquittal for Hell's Angel leader Sonny Barger on a murder charge four years ago.

Crew told the judge that he had only talked with Braeseke for two or three minutes immediately before court convened, and wanted two and a half weeks to review all the facts in the case.

Judge Eaton granted the request, setting Sept. 16 at 11 a.m. as the date when Braeseke will be asked to enter a plea in the case. A future date for a preliminary hearing will also be set at that time.

Braeseke is charged with the murders of his father and mother, Floyd and Barbara Braeseke, both 41, and his grandfather, John Braeseke, 81. He is charged with three counts of first degree murder, conspiracy to murder, armed and used a firearm during commission of a felony, and "special circumstances" — a multiple murder.

If convicted by a judge or jury on the conspiracy and/or multiple murder charges, Braeseke would have to face the gas chamber under present state law.

With the aid of David Barker, 16, of 9609 Broadmoor Drive in San Ramon, Braeseke is said by the sheriff's department complaint to have shot the three dead, then fled for about four hours to establish an alibi. Braeseke later allegedly confessed to the murders, according to an affidavit filed with the sheriff's department.

Attorney Crew then requested a private meeting with Judge Eaton in chambers. The judge later said Crew made several requests at that time, and he would consider them, but that information was not made public.

Braeseke was then taken back to his cell in Oakland's county courthouse jail. He is being held on $600,000 bail.

Young Barker will face similar charges of murder when he appears before a juvenile court. His trial date has not yet been set.

Barker remains in custody in juvenile hall in San Leandro.

Braeseke's statement tells plan

One week before he was shot to death in a Dublin home, 81-year-old John Braeseke asked a financial consultant what would happen to the money he had in a Chicago bank "if something should happen to me," The Times has learned.

Investigators probing the triple murder have discovered that the elder Braeseke had some six savings accounts totalling perhaps $100,000 in Dublin banks and savings and loans.

In a written statement, Barry Braeseke, 20, paternal grandson of the elder Braeseke, allegedly said he and 16-year-old David Barker of San Ramon committed the murders to gain an inheritance.

In an affidavit filed with the sheriff's office, the 20-year-old former Dublin High School student is said to have told authorities that the killing of his father, mother and grandfather were Barker's idea.

Braeseke was quoted as telling investigators that he and Barker discussed the possibility of the murders Monday afternoon. After young Braeseke had dinner with his parents that night, he said he took a .22-caliber rifle from a closet, loaded it and then shot his father, and then his mother.

The affidavit states that Braeseke held his grandfather while Barker raised the weapon and shot him.

Braeseke returned to the home about 12:45 a.m. Tuesday and told a neighbor that his parents "were all bloody." The neighbor called an ambulance, and Barry returned home and called the sheriff's department.

Sheriff's deputies later found the murder weapon under a bridge in Castro Valley where it had been stashed shortly after the shootings.

Pleasanton Councilman Brandes balks on Alameda County Fair's 5-year plan

PLEASANTON — The city council gave its advisory endorsement to the Alameda County Fair's five year plan for construction last week without the vote of Councilman Frank Brandes.

Brandes abstained because he wants to get answers about what he feels are some important questions concerning the city's relationship with the fair, especially in terms of future sewer costs and land use planning.

"I'm not pleased with the fairground plans," Brandes told The Times last week. "When I saw the fair's big plan several years ago, they had a year around midway which was as big as anything Six Flags over Texas was going to come in with. It's interesting that voters kept that out of town, but if the fair wants a big midway, there's nothing the city can do about it."

The fair administration is a private group which acts as a contractor for Alameda County to run the fair. The fairgrounds is county property and Pleasanton has no planning control over it.

The five year construction plan was referred to the city as a courtesy, but nothing the city council says necessarily has any power over the fair.

Brandes is also concerned about the extension of Valley Avenue through the fair grounds. He wants to make sure there is coordination so that Valley Avenue is put through properly.

Brandes also wants to learn how much money the fair will contribute to its share of financing the interceptor line from the city's old sewer plant to the new one it will build next to the VCSD sewer plant. Pleasanton's share of the line is $330,000.

Federal and state government will pay the remaining 87 per cent. He also wonders how much the fair will pay in hookup fees to the new sewer plant.

The fairgrounds is exempt from sewer fees into the old Sunol Boulevard Sewer Treatment Plant by an agreement signed with the city.

"They have some pretty grandiose plans which I haven't reviewed in depth. I'm not sure Pleasanton wants all those activities, if we have no control over it. I abstained on the council vote because I have not yet been able to get fully informed about it," Brandes was elected to the city council in April.

"I realize the vote of the city council means nothing on the matter," he added. "It's a useless vote; the fair can do anything they want. The referral is just a matter of courtesy."

The council majority declared last week that it wants the covering for the amphitheatre moved up on the priority list. It currently is number 15 on the list and is scheduled for construction in the 1978-79 fiscal year at an estimated cost of $200,000.

Some of the bigger projects over the next five years planned in, on the priority list, include $550,000 for the Amador Pavilion, including landscaping, parking and lighting in 1976-77; demolition of 4-H building and dormitories, $50,000 in 1977-78; development of Bicentennial Plaza, $200,000; horsebarns, $500,000, amphitheatre covering, $200,000 in 1978-79; relocation of carnival midway and kiddie land area, $350,000; Hall of Commerce building, $1 million, 1979-80; upgrading of Floral Palace, $175,000; upgrading of Gallery of Art, $150,000; demolition of Court of Four Seasons building and expansion of garden area, $125,000; sports pool plaza, $175,000, 1980-81.

BART's Bianco cites politics as disrupting district element

Alameda County Bureau BART director Nello Bianco's resignation as board vice president last week was more than a minor ripple in a distant sea.

His reasons for stepping down — and the analysis upon which he based his move — dovetail with valley director Robert Allen's and approach the problem of running the financially plagued district from a new, unexpected though it should not have been, angled: politics.

"It became apparent that five members of the board voted as a block and will continue to conduct the business of BART in a manner and form I disagree with," he says. "In my years of public life, I know that when a bare majority controls a public agency, in order to keep their coalition together they must at times support each other when those matters are not in the best interest of the public they serve."

Bianco, owner/operator of the Capri Delicatessen and Catering Service in Richmond, was appointed to the board by Contra Costa County Supervisors in 1969. He was elected to a four-year term in 1974 when the district changed to elected officials.

In his seven continuous years as a director, he has been representing some 290,000 people along the waterfront from El Cerrito around the bend to Martinez and Bethel Island. He's up yet for reelection in 1978, but doesn't yet know if he'll run again.

"If the board can't straighten out its internal affairs," he says, his voice trailing off, "Well, I'm concerned that the state might take over. That would be unfortunate."

The State Legislature, continually upset over the district's inability to pull its books out of the red, has talked of such a move, hinting that CalTrans, the state's transportation arm, could do a better job. The Metropolitan Transportation Commission has been suggested, too.

Stoneridgers seek open space

PLEASANTON — Stoneridge residents who have ascomplaint against the sales persons who sold them their homes should complain to the state Division of Real Estate, not the Attorney General's office, an Attorney General's deputy said last week.

Some Stoneridge residents contend that when they bought their homes a few years ago they were promised a grassy park area on Stonedale Drive. It materialized as a recreational vehicle storage yard early this year and they complained to the city council about it.

Both the council and the residents learned that a grassy area had been drawn up in the first draft of the plan for the neighborhood, but two subsequent maps had the recreational vehicle storage yard on it.

The residents contend that since both uses were "approved" for the site, both have equal weight and the council should decide which one should take precedent, hopefully the grassy area.

But the council chose the recreational vehicle yard, backed by City Attorney Ken Scheidig's opinion that the last two maps both had official standing where the first one was just a schematic sketch of the property.

The lot is 98 per cent complete, but can't be used until the controversy is settled.

Stoneridge residents told The Times they would go to the Attorney General's office asking for an investigation. A check with Diana Woodward, Deputy Attorney General in San Francisco, revealed that the Division of Real Estate has proper jurisdiction in the matter.

If misrepresentations were made by persons selling property, the DRE could take away the person's license, said Woodward. If the residents take the case to court as they have been discussing and if they win a judgement in a civil suit, then it's possible the residents could get damage money from a special fund established by the DRE for such cases. The fund comes from a percentage of all of the realtors' fees in the state.

A spokesperson for the DRE office in San Francisco was uncommittal Friday, preferring to forego comment until he talks to the residents.

They were joined by Walnut Creek's Hill in a resolution to raise fares in the East Bay, but lower them by five-cents in San Francisco.

Hill reportedly said his constituents were affluent and could afford the hike. President Elmer Cooper of San Francisco, who was

'Popping' RR tie irks Joyce

PLEASANTON — Does the railroad crossing on Main Street near Sunol Boulevard have a tie that binds?

No, but it has a tie that pops up when a car tire hits it, Councilwoman Joyce LeClaire told the city council a few weeks ago. She asked the staff to send someone out to fix it.

But last week LeClaire complained at another council meeting that the loose tie is still popping up, a potential hazard to motorists.

City Manager Bill Edgar explained that the tie is on railroad property and city crews are not allowed to touch it. The city has contacted the railroad about it, said Edgar.

Four seek two LARPD directorships

LIVERMORE — With only one day left before the filing deadline, four candidates have qualified for ballot status in the Nov. 2 election of two recreation directors.

Incumbent director Marlin A. Pound, 542 Escondido Circle, submitted petitions with 17 signatures Wednesday for reelection to the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District board of directors.

He has served on the board since April 30, 1968 when he was appointed to fill a vacancy. He was elected to two four-year terms in 1968 and 1972 and has served as both chairman and vice chairman of the board.

William S. Johns, 55 Rincon Ave., a retired postal clerk, filed his papers August 16. He obtained the maximum 20 signatures. (A minimum of 10 are required for qualification.)

Ernest Rodriguez, 1259 Norwood Place, a graphic photographer, filed on Thursday with 20 names.

Robert D. Hebert, 779 El Rancho Drive, businessman - retired Navy, filed his petitions Friday with 17 signatures.

LARPD Administrative Assistant Hal Adams said the deadline for filing nominating petitions is noon Monday, if brought into the LARPD office at 71 Trevarno Road, or 5 p.m. if brought to the Alameda County Court House, 1225 Fallon St., Oakland.

The LARPD board includes five directors, serving four-year terms.

Fair board unit views financing

The Alameda County Fair Association board's budget committee worked its way through an approximate $3 million ledger at the annual budget hearing held Saturday morning in Pleasanton.

The budget is divided into two parts: Operating funds for the Fair which are kept in the county treasury, and capital outlay funds that are apportioned to the county by the state and kept in the state treasury until expended.

The County Fair Association went into the present calendar year with a balance of $1,090,120. This combined with operating income of $2,314,500 and a state apportionment of $65,000 gave the Fair Association a total available of $3,469,620.

Subtracting operating expenses and capital expenses, the net total expense for 1976 was $2,911,196.

Balance as of Dec. 31, 1976 was estimated to be $647,522.

The Fair Association maintains reserves for plant maintenance, operating the fair, and premiums, plus an unreserved balance. Reserve for operating the fair this year was $300,000. —by Al Fischer

BART's Bianco hits board

The board, claim Bianco, Allen, Fremont representative John Glenn, Walnut Creek's James Hill and most observers of their meetings including outside engineers, is run by a five-member "clique" that represents the best interests of metropolitan San Francisco and Oakland.

"It's obvious to any observer that when a real major issue comes on that one of the group will say that he or she is in favor of it and it's automatic that he's got four more votes," says Bianco. "In my two years serving with this present board, I can't recall them ever dividing on any major issue."

Including feeder bus service to the valley and Bianco's northern Contra Costa County.

It was, he points out, the five directors representing the metropolitan areas that voted for a resolution that would have cut off bus service last October.

They were joined by Walnut Creek's Hill in a resolution to raise fares in the East Bay, but lower them by five-cents in San Francisco.

Hill reportedly said his constituents were affluent and could afford the hike. President Elmer Cooper of San Francisco, who was investigated and cleared by the Alameda County Grand Jury for allegedly misusing BART expense accounts, is joined by city representatives Ella Hill Hutch and John H. Kirkwood in the five-member "clique," says Bianco. Former board president Richard Clark, also investigated and cleared by the grand jury, represents Oakland in the voting block, while Dr. Harvey W. Glasser, a psychiatrist, speaks for the City of Alameda.

Glasser replaced Bianco as vice president after last week's resignation, but not after the two had a heated exchange before the press and public.

"I hold you as the person most responsible for bringing Chicago-style politics to this board," Bianco shouted at Glasser. "You talk out of both sides of your mouth."

"You're the worst guy on this board, and I'm telling you right to your face that you're the sneakiest."

Glasser had been telling reporters that Bianco's resignation was a political, pre-election move, the Richmond director says. But he does not face reelection for two more years.

Bianco promises to keep fighting for expanded rail service — if there ever is any — to the valley and northern Contra Costa County before he lets it jump "out of the counties that have been paying for it, or down to the airports."

Continued feeder bus service is guaranteed in pending legislation, he adds. A bill by Assemblyman John Knox that continues the half-cent tax has passed both houses and now sits in a committee to work out amendments.

Decision due on budget

Leshar News Bureau
MARTINEZ — The Board of Supervisors must make a final decision Monday on the proposed $223 million county budget, probably without knowing exactly what effect it will have.

Recommendations made by the board's administration and finance committee would result in a net reduction of $2.05 million, and a property tax cut of about 1.8 cents.

But the public apparently will not get a chance to comment on the cuts, including the possibility of layoffs of an undetermined number of county personnel.

In the first place, county fiscal experts admit they won't be able to calculate the effect on personnel until the board makes a decision on dollar amounts to be cut.

In the second place, the board closed the public hearing before the cuts were made public. Even county workers who might be affected complained they read about them afterwards in newspapers.

The supervisors meet at 9 a.m. Monday in the county administration building to accept, reject or change the report of the committee made up of Supervisors Warren Boggess of Concord and James Moriarty of Lafayette.

The public can come and listen, but unless the board votes to re-open the hearing, no one will be allowed to testify.

The cuts recommended by the committee coincide with recommendations to the members by department heads of how they would cut their budgets 1 percent.

All departments responded except Superior Court and four of the five municipal courts. The committee recommends to the full board that they be ordered to respond, but since judges can order the board to provide for the needs of the court, they are not likely to be heeded.

Among the cuts called for by the committee:

— Board of Supervisors, reduce consulting services, $3,670.

— County Administrator, terminate use of administrative interns from local colleges, cut travel, $5,510.

— Treasurer-tax collector, eliminate a new position of field tax collector, perhaps hampering collection of delinquent taxes, $7,590.

— Assessor, delete sever. positions, slowing down reappraisals, $73,000.

— Telephone exchange, reduce operators, a move already contemplated with the extension of the Centrex telephone system, but cutting $14,330 from the budget figures.

— Economic Development (subsidy to Contra Costa Development Association), reduce advertising of county resources in effort to encourage industrial development, $1,490.

— Delta Municipal Court, Pittsburg, the only court responding to the committee, eliminate half-time clerk, resulting in backlog of court processing, $4,210. Another $23,900 could be saved by closing the Brentwood branch, a move advocated by the judges, but resisted by East County residents, and not included, but mentioned, in the committee report.

— District Attorney, cut five apparently new and unfilled positions, reducing prosecution of juvenile offenders, eliminating infraction prosecution, curtailing consumer law enforcement efforts even though it brings in money, and decreasing enforcement of conflict of interest laws, $85,880.

Public Defender, eliminate two proposed positions, close Pittsburg office, probably force more cases to be assigned to outside attorneys at three times the cost, $36,760.

Sheriff, eliminate two sergeants and three deputies, affecting litter control, deputy in the classroom program, reducing training to that mandated by the state, reducing marine patrol from seven to four days, and other effects, $119,890.

— Probation, reduce adult board and care funding and funding for Quest House for women offenders, possible resulting in more jail time; discontinue adult drug education program; reduce expenditures for food, clothing and temporary salaries at Juvenile Hall and Byron Boys Ranch; other changes, resulting in elimination of six positions, four of them recommended in the original budget; $202,750.

— Animal Control, reduce kennel sanitation and maintenance; eliminate special patrol officer; $35,600. These were the only reduction recommended by the county Department of Agriculture, none being made for the agricultural divisions.

— Health Department, eliminate dental health officer, in which case department may not be in full compliance with state law, $39,320.

— Social Service, eliminate 18 eligibility workers, possibly increase error rate in welfare cases; reduce marriage conciliation court counseling by one-quarter position; and various other reductions, $240,000.

— Medical Services, various reductions, primarily in mental health services, $286,730.

Private sector can spur transit

This is the third and final article on municipal transit systems in Northern California and their example for similar bus lines in the Livermore - Amador Valley.

Some municipal bus lines are inaugurated with extremely vested interests.

Often, a merchants association will approach city staff with a funding plan by which some sort of minimal downtown service can be underwritten.

It frequently grows to city-wide service with operational responsibility becoming the city's domain.

Such is the case in Walnut Creek, though the beginnings were slightly different than just described.

Walnut Creek began expanded three-route bus service in January after an initial period of downtown service from the Bay Area Rapid Transit District station.

Two of the three buses on the routes still travel the downtown loop with the other taking commuters from the Ygnacio Valley area to the BART station in the mornings and returning them in the evenings. During mid-day hours the same bus runs from Ygnacio Valley to the downtown Walnut Creek area.

"It was originally projected that we would average 100 riders a day, and we would have been quite satisfied with that," says Rene Blum, the city's shuttle bus supervisor. Now the bus system has been averaging 150 customers per day per bus.

A passenger can ride all day on the Walnut Creek bus, getting on and off where he chooses, for 25 cents.

The mid-day route from Ygnacio Valley to the downtown area, roughly equivalent to a route between Pleasanton's Stoneridge and downtown, runs from approximately 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

In April, local bus systems in Contra Costa County were voted funds under a policy adopted by the Board of Supervisors.

Supervisors agreed to commit up to $300,000 to bus systems over the next two years. The money would come from a state sales tax revenues which are normally used by the county for public works projects.

The county's funding would last only two years, after which people in areas with bus systems would be required to vote for taxes to keep the buses rolling.

Among those cities considering local bus systems at the time were Pleasant Hill, Concord, Moraga and Orinda.

Union City's bus service, like the initial operation in Napa, was started by a private party. It has evolved on a joint - funding basis but retains its city - routes - to - BART - station modus operandi.

Members of the Pleasanton city council toured the Union City operation about a year ago, when it was merging from its Patterson Transportation cocoon to full municipal status.

The routes, which connect BART, the civic center, the old Decoto area and the sprawling Alvarado section, are operated from approximately 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 to 7 on Saturdays.

Fares originally established were 10 cents one-way for adults and five cents for senior citizens, and children. Drivers accept BART and AC Transit transfers.

The area, as well as Fremont and Newark, is now covered by AC Transit, with all lines connecting to the BART stations.

It is this latter fact that valley municipalities would have to deal with ultimately, assuming availability of funds first. Whether small feeder buses, to the AC-BART feeder lines, are feasible would have to be determined ... along with the need for mid-day service between neighborhoods, shopping centers and downtown areas.

Preventive medicine for pets today

PLEASANTON — Pet Preventa Care is coming to town today.

This new service provides low cost vaccinations for dogs and cats, giving immunization for rabies, distemper, leptospirosis, and cat fever, also known as distemper or panleukopenia.

Veterinarians will begin at 10 a.m. and leave at 5 p.m. at the county fairgrounds. Fee is $3.25 for each shot. All dogs must be on a leash and cats in cat boxes. Containers will be provided at the clinic for $2 50 each.

Pet Preventa Care is based in Davis and hopes to attain a much higher degree of pet immunization throughout the state by providing this service in communities where it is not readily available.

Disseminating information is also important to the clinic. For example, says their press release, the public should be made aware that rabies, though rare in some areas, is such a lethal and terrible affliction that it is foolish not to guard against it.

Pet vaccination is a valuable service for several reasons, said the group. The law requires that dogs be vaccinated for rabies. Distemper is a predominant killer among the infectious diseases. A statistic not commonly known is that 30 to 50 per cent of all dogs die before the age of three and depending on the area distemper can be a major source of this high mortality rate.

Artworks '76 program

Economic and cultural needs meet at last!

By JEAN McKENNA

The portrait of the artist as an obscure, penniless figure who labors for love of art in a drafty garret while the rest of the world goes by is being revised.

The economic plight of unemployed artists and artistic institutions in financial crisis is familiar. However, a surprising appetite for increased cultural opportunities among the average citizen was recently uncovered by a survey conducted in California.

A whopping 82 per cent of the persons surveyed rated the arts as an important element in the business and economy of the community. The survey also found overwhelming public support for increasing the exposure of children to a wide range of artistic and cultural experiences.

So why not pair up public demand with the artist who needs a job?

Not since the days of the Great Depression when the WPA (Works Progress Administration) employed 40,000 artists has the idea been seriously taken up. The artist in his garret has been bypassed by government programs to alleviate unemployment.

Artworks '76 in Alameda County is just one of a growing number of innovative programs designed to provide work for the artist at the same time satisfying the community's hunger for culture. Eighteen artists in the county, including two from the valley, will participate in the pilot program just getting underway.

"I think it's a very good sign," says Lucille Musso of Livermore, one of the participating artists. "We're finally acknowledging the need to feed the soul of the community, as well as providing technological advances." Davi Bieber of Pleasanton is the second valley artist hired to work 20 hours per week at $4.25 per hour for six months — for the community.

The money for the project comes from the U. S. Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA), a federal government program which helps local governments employ and train disadvantaged, unemployed or under-lifestyle

employed workers. The six-month contract was awarded to the Alameda County Neighborhood Arts Program, a non-profit service organization. Hopefully, it's just the beginning.

"The program really has an understanding of the artist," believes Davi Bieber, a young, uninhibited and generous sculptor. "The artist is given direction, yet allowed the freedom necessary to be creative and give as much as possible."

Davi, just for starters, has already committed herself to conducting a ceramics class at Livermore's Buenas Vidas Youth Ranch, a similar class for the Horizons juvenile diversion program, consulting on a ceramic mural for a Hayward community park, work with prisoners at Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center, assisting art instructors at Granada High School, and a class at the Hotline crisis intervention center.

A talented young artist who had difficulty fitting into the structured school system herself, Davi is in a unique position to understand the need for self-expression often found among troubled youth. She feels she has a lot to share as an artist and is excited about the opportunity to do so — and still afford room and board for herself.

Actually the money she will receive from the Artworks '76 program is not a "living" (she earns her room at the Stonyridge Winery by housekeeping for the staff there). And it appears she will spend far more than 20 hours per week involved in the community-oriented programs. But she will also gain valuable job experience, make contacts and learn to become self-sufficient as an artist.

A workshop on economic survival in the arts is offered to participating artists, and the public, as part of Artworks '76. (The class is conducted Mondays, 9 a.m. to noon at Chabot College, Room 1908). Davi has found the workshop a valuable education in making her artistic skills, attractive job skills.

Davi's interest in art was sparked by Instructor Bernice Segal at Granada High School who recognized her need for independence in exploring her own abilities. She found she was a "natural" at three-dimensional art and learned to work with clay and metal.

She received the Bank of America award for fine art while a student at Granada High.

Davi gained casting skills at a San Leandro foundry, learned to make molds and do finishing work. Recently she was employed by a foundry at Scotts Valley, but found the repetitive work of reproducing gift items unexciting, and was eventually laid off because the fine arts "experiment" was not profitable.

Plaster, clay, wax and even bronze are Davi's mediums, and she confesses she cannot sit still for very long without creating something. Her art is an undeniable part of the person she is, and Davi hopes she can eventually support herself as a full-time artist.

Artists Lucille Musso and Davi Bieber will participate in an exciting new county program designed to help artists share their talents directly with the community.

Lucille is familiar to valley residents as the creator of the popular Laughing Cricket Puppet Theater. She, too, has described her personal need to be creative. "For me," she says, "life is process, not product."

She loves children and considers her puppet theater "play not work." Lucille teaches classes at Chabot and Ohlone junior colleges in childhood education, an area she finds fascinating because it is in childhood that the creative process begins.

"I'm also excited about older people because of my own experience," she declares. Lucille discovered art as a means of self-expression only six years ago when she took up photography.

She now engages in painting, mosaic work, sculpture and poetry. "Sometimes I think they're all going in the same direction, but sometimes I feel a bit unfocused. That's just the person I am," she explains.

She feels that everyone is always on the "brink of growth" and so is very interested in teaching, or sharing her talents. Through Artworks '76, Lucille will conduct classes on women and creativity through the South County YWCA, teach drama at Fremont's Daybreak teen center (she holds a masters degree in creative dramatics), and get involved with school children locally through her puppets. Lucille will also join Davi in classes at Buenas Vidas Youth Ranch.

Both women plan to engage the community in other cultural experiences before the six-month period of Artworks '76 is concluded. Artworks will also be recruiting another group of artists in the performing, performing and literary arts if the program is given additional funds. Contact the Neighborhood Arts Program at 653-7880 for details.

It appears the community is on the brink of cultural growth!

'New Age' Anthropos

"Evening with Anthropos" presents Lynn Bieber, a family counselor, who will visualize the coming of "The New Age" Wednesday, Sept. 1 at Anthropos headquarters, 1814 Catalina Ct., Livermore.

The program from 8 to 10 p.m. is open to the public at $2 per person.

Ms. Bieber holds a master's degree from California State University at Hayward and is a licensed marriage, family and child counselor who worked three years at Mendocino Junior High School. She is a director for Anthropos who believes that "the way to recreate the world is by recreating ourselves."

Spaghetti dinner

The Charles Auer Veterans of Foreign Wars Post and Auxiliary of Dublin will host a spaghetti dinner Friday, Sept. 3 at the Veterans Memorial Building in Pleasanton.

The public is invited to the 7 p.m. dinner at $1 per person. Reservations may be made by calling Pat Morgan at 828-6899.

The post recently welcomed Charles Mac McIntyre as a new member. The auxiliary mourns the loss of Wanda Sexton who died last month. Next meeting for the Dublin V.F.W. is Sept. 17.

Hoe Down Plus has Western flair

The "Hoe Down Plus" planned in September by members of the Mulbe Branch of Children's Hospital Medical Center will be set at The Barn in Livermore, an authentic historical restoration which will lend a Western flavor to the barbeque and dance.

The atmosphere will be enhanced by decorative bales of hay, wagon wheels and gingham-cloth table coverings. Branch members will wear calico and cotton.

For tickets to festivities Sept. 25 from 7 p.m. call Mrs. B. L. Ellis at 447-6525.

Housecleaning

Alice Pryor of the Pleasanton Junior Women's Club, Sugar Wilson and Wilma Peat load up a camper with staples for Buenas Vista Ranch in Livermore. The Juniors did some "house cleaning" and donated accumulated items to the ranch. Old Mardi Gras costumes and various material for making new costumes along with old aprons will be donated to the Pleasanton Recreation Department.

SUE'S VIEW

Movin' on

Being transferred from state to state can be two parts fun, one part work. It depends on your attitude.

I always enjoyed it. For one thing, I rarely had to Spring house clean. I just moved.

My husband's company transferred us eight times in 15 years. Our longest relocation was seven years; the shortest, three months. During long ones we sometimes changed houses a time or two. Between doing that, plus considering other homes lived in during pre-transfer days, we have resided in 17 houses and moved 13 times.

But I know there are people in this area who can beat that record by a mile. Ever notice how many moving vans roll around here?

Meeting lots of nice people is one of the things I liked best about playing U.S. hopscotch. Our Christmas card list grew long as a government form but we wound up with great friends.

Going where I've gone in this country and seeing what I've seen also made transferring enjoyable.

I can close my eyes and remember a snowcapped New Mexico mountain that seemed suspended above the desert floor. Dawn's first gray light created that illusion then quickly suffused the scene with pink. It was a Psalm in color. Nor will I forget Sequoia National Park — that outdoor cathedral whose absolute tranquility reaches from some early day in time. Niagara Falls roaring power, and flowers pushing through minuscule crevices in granite mountains will also be recollected now and then.

But I'll never believe anybody made it cross country in a covered wagon. Impossible! We've made the trip eight times in an air conditioned car and often thought we were roughing it.

Living in motels the allowed 30 days was fun too. No housework, no cooking; just lying around at company expense between house - hunting jaunts.

Of course, the company per diem allotment didn't allow us to run out and do cash - on - the - barrel - head business with the local Rolls Royce dealer. But it kept us in chocolate sundae money if we were careful.

Getting ready to move wasn't always laughs. Moving companies do a great job of coping with transfermania but their brochures have never printed or pictured all.

The day movers pack, the lady of the house does not sit around in her best dress and earrings. Nor do her two smiling children stand by in their best bib and tucker. The kids are usually in jeans practicing karate chops on a box marked "crystal" while Mom tries to keep the men from sealing up baby's lunch in a shipping carton. If she's lucky, she might get to sit on the floor in a corner the next day while the van is being loaded.

On my first move I didn't realize you had to lock things in a vault that weren't to go on a van. We arrived in Cape Canaveral (then) Florida, with boxful of trash complete with coffee grounds. It was labeled "Misc. Kitchen."

The other extreme was to be too efficient. A friend organized herself right out of anything sensible to wear on a move from Florida to Texas. She made the entire run dressed in a black cocktail dress and white tennis shoes. She said wearing a head scarf printed with "See Rock City" did not help.

House - hunting was usually trying. After covering the territory with real estate ladies whose long nails always seemed to be painted Wine - Dreg Burgundy, I reached a point where a buffalo wallow looked like a choice spot to set up bed and board.

Sometimes it was small things like finding a new beauty operator that threw me for a loop. I've had more haircuts resembling the gnawings of a blindfolded billy goat than I care to recall.

But I never felt alone. I had read where about 40,000,000 Americans change addresses each year.

A survey of 200 corporations made by Atlas Moving Co. showed 20 per cent moved executives every two years. One-third uprooted people every five years. Once, when a top man retired, the resulting promotions down the line made it necessary for the company to transfer 14 people.

In his book, "A Nation of Strangers", Vance Packard dubbed folks like us "company gypsies."

He was right. Although we didn't have to read palms and live off the land, survival of the fittest was a concern from time to time.

As this Transfer-Tillie sees it, "It's like riding a roller coaster sitting backwards. Where you've been is seen as a blur and you can't tell where you'll end up."

"... and the Homeowners Association would also like to know what your husband's hobbies are ..."

Word from Sacramento that the State Assembly has adopted an "Equal Rights Amendment" for dogs is of widespread interest. Particularly among dogs.

Senator John Holmdahl authored the legislation, that, in the words of that distinguished Alameda County solon, "copes with the most serious abuses" of canine rights in California.

Now, only if you have had to view the world from all fours can you appreciate the significance of this legislative move.

"It is the first giant step for dogkind," the Dachshund who shares our residence confided. At first she had refused to be interviewed, maintaining she is still outraged at the humans who failed to feed her last Thursday evening.

I explained, again, that the missed feeding was a regrettable oversight, arising from the late social event attended by the lady of the house and myself.

"You came staggering in here around midnight, and were in no condition to feed me or anyone else," Dachshund barked. I reasoned that it was closer to 11 p.m. than it was midnight, and besides, since when do humans have to account to dogs for our social hours?

"Spoken like a true homo sapien chauvinist," Dachshund growled. "Just because you people walk on two legs instead of four, you think you run the whole blessed earth."

I tried to point out that nutrition experts agree a small dog is better off skipping a meal now and then. Gives them their girlish figure.

"More human poppycock!" Dachshund said, chewing on the corner of her bed in anger. "When was the last time any of you fat cats missed a meal? Besides, those 'nutrition experts' you talk of are all from the same H.S. Club. It's the buddy system, pure and simple."

I asked, politely, if we could get back to discussing the new Equal Rights Amendment for Dogs. It is, I suggested, a breakthrough in the very discriminatory practices that seem to be bothering my Dachshund friend. For one thing, the legislation would apply tight new guidelines on all dog catchers.

"And it's about time!" Dachshund snapped.

"Those net - happy turkeys are something else. Just last week a very close friend of mine was hassled by the Animal Control Officer who exercised extreme discourtesy during that chase."

If you mean the Doberman from down the street, I said, then you must remember that she has been a neighborhood activist of the first order ... frightening small boys and old ladies ... generally raising hell.

"Frightening small boys! That's a laugh," Dachshund said, chewing her words. "Doberman is sought after by every love - hungry kid in the block. Which is why the frustrated Mamas get into the act, throwing rocks at my friend, calling in the cops. What this town needs is a Canine Ombudsman," she concluded.

That is just what Senator Holmdahl seems to have in mind, I pointed out. The "Equal Rights Amendment for Dogs" would set forth all kinds of liberties for the canine populace ... freedom from search and arrest in their own homes ... restrictions on entrapment ... no wire tapping in the kennels. That sort of thing.

"And how about the right to speak out? Does this ERA for dogs give us the right to say our piece?" my little friend demanded.

Well, I explained most gently, these things take time. You just can't expect the canine world to get full - fledged rights in one fell swoop. After all, look how long it took us humans to get where we are!

"And where you are ain't so good, frankly," Dachshund growled. "Maybe what you need is a little more canine influence in your world ... a Police Dog in the White House even."

Now just a flea - pickin' minute, I said, heatedly. Giving you dogs a few rights does not mean that we humans are about to hand over the whole blessed country to you! That's the very kind of fear - tactic that almost killed Senator Holmdahl's legislation in the Assembly. I suggested to my Dachshund friend that she cool that kind of talk, at least until the Holmdahl ERA for dogs clears the governor's desk.

"You mean that little business of getting Jerry Brown's signature?" Dachshund said, showing just enough teeth. "I wouldn't worry about that, my humanistic friend. We have a mongrel in the governor's third - floor pad who is in real good with Jerry's cocker spaniel, if you know what I mean. We just slip word to Mongrel to withhold her favors from Cocker Spaniel and then Cocker starts raising hell with Brown and ..."

Spare me the gory detail! I pleaded. It's one thing to give you damned dogs equal rights. It's something else when we have to listen to you howl.

Water warning

One message that deserves repeating over and over is that which reminds us of the world's crisis in fresh water.

The "worst drought in 500 years" that is now saddling England with yet another crushing blow might seem a remote item for a water consumer in California. But not if we are smart.

The British Isles have historically been a land of water surplus ... great expanses of lovely parks ... backyard gardens and green meadows, all seemingly blessed with nature's year - around watering system. But no more. And not in France either, nor much of Europe.

Nor in Marin County, where the "great drought of 1976" comes closer to home. The truth is we are experiencing a drastic change in this planet's weather pattern. Some experts maintain "we have been enjoying unusually good weather for the last 100 years, and now we are due to return to earth's normal cycle."

That cycle, in the view of these scientists, will mean long periods of drought, expansion of the deserts, whole societies being uprooted, a sharp increase in the world's tension ... which always seems to follow widespread hunger.

Even if that awesome prediction does not come true, it is clear that this is a planet with limited resources ... first the dwindling energy supply, now a decline in the "natural" flow of consumable water. Nowhere is that imbalance between supply and consumption more evident than within these United States, where we have always consumed many times the world's per-capita spread of these resources.

This week the East Bay Municipal Utility District launched "an intensive campaign aimed at increasing consumer involvement in water conservation." Here is one message we must all respond to without further encouragement ... with careful watering of our gardens, with guarded practices in the shower, the kitchen, the leaky faucet, the well - flushed toilet.

England's crisis should be fair warning of what can happen to one nation's "historic abundance of water."

The Dow decision

The question confronting the Bay Area Pollution Control District in a scheduled Tuesday morning hearing on an industrial development proposed in Solano County is a matter that has impact well into our own Valley.

You are aware of the application (and now an appeal) by Dow Chemical Company for a BAAPCD permit that would allow the development of a multi - million dollar plant, part of which would be located in the northern reaches of Contra Costa County. The "environmentalist concern" is that Dow's industrial expansion would further "degrade" the East Bay's sensitive air quality. This is a feeling shared by BAAPCD's Chief Air Pollution Control Officer, who seems to have total authority in this matter of granting or refusing permits to new industrial ventures.

That is an awesome power to assign to any one official. Whatever else might be said of Dow's proposal, it seems cleaj that an investment promising thousands of jobs (both during construction and eventually in the plant's operation) demands careful study by the broadest public representation.

We agree with Eric Hasseltine, the Contra Costa supervisorial candidate from Danville, who recently cited the East Bay's critical problems in unemployment and tax imbalance, and suggested that a proposal of the Dow Chemical magnitude deserves widespread consideration.

That opportunity comes Tuesday, 9 a.m. at the BAAPCD board room on the seventh floor of 939 Ellis St. in San Francisco.

The argument will be hot and heavy ... Sierra Club versus construction industry, and so forth. It could also be a test case to guide all future industrial and even commercial investment throughout much of the Bay Area.

Those of us who need the jobs, and breathe the air, should pay close attention.

The week in retrospect

Law and disorder

Demise of the "Debbie Rebiejo Act" in the Assembly's Criminal Justice Committee was not unexpected.

For those unfamiliar with the case leading to the legislation, Miss Rebiejo was kidnapped from the Chabot College parking lot in Hayward by a recently - released felon. Her battered and sexually - assaulted body was found a day or so later near a country road above Sacramento.

Her murderer, who had a long history of violent crime, had been granted an early release by the California Adult Authority though, as it was discovered later, supporting evidence for freedom was minimal.

What statistical evidence does show is that there are more parolees than ever before and the rate of recidivism, for the past 10 years, is 50 per cent. In other words, half of all parolees residing in California will be returned to California prisons.

On a national scale, of all convicted felons that were paroled, 64 per cent were arrested again within three years after having committed another crime.

Problems engendered by this onslaught of prison parolees are not peculiar to Alameda County.

Miss Rebiejo's murderer had been released five weeks before the crime. In 1971, an Alameda County prosecutor described him as a one-man crime wave and declared he should never be paroled. The sentencing judge thought likewise.

Mayor John Reading of Oakland notes the "special problem" the county has. Although there were 870 convicted individuals sentenced from the county, there were in the past year 1,224 adult parolees actually released in the county. This means, Reading says, that 40 per cent more individuals who have been convicted of a crime have been released in this county than were sentenced here.

"The impact of this influx of parolees is difficult to assess," says Reading, "but it is obvious that with the high level of recidivism, we will be getting more than our share of problems in this county and in Oakland."

Reading believes this state has "an outrageous parole system." He is certainly not alone.

In the first quarter of 1976, 25 state prison parolees were arrested for unlawful homicides. If that rate continues, there will be 100 state prison parolees arrested this year for unlawful homicides.

"As the 1975 string of Oakland wolf-pack crimes clearly demonstrates, the liberty and safety of our residents are not only threatened by adult parolees. Youthful, violent offenders, many on probation, or California Youth Authority parole, are a major threat as well," adds Reading.

In Oakland, 35 per cent of youthful offenders are repeaters — but the county rate is somewhat less. Allen F. Breed, director of the Youth Authority, now admits, "We've been too permissive."

We will not belabor this sorrowful issue, other than to comment it is hoped candidates for public office (Congress, Assembly and Senate) as well as Messrs Hayakawa and Tunney (Senate) will give more than passing reference to this problem.

The courts, adult and youth authority and our prison system in this state have failed miserably. And it is the law-abiding man and woman who is being victimized.

'Eternal vigilance'

Editor, The Times:

The issues in Livermore of mandatory attic fans, dead-bolt locks, smoke detectors and now the house - to - house search for unlicensed dogs being conducted by the police - sponsored Explorer Scouts, makes one wonder whether the Livermore City Council understands the meaning of "Private Domain."

Ordinances such as these, which are designed to "be good for us," only add to the slow but steady erosion of the privacy of our homes. We, as private citizens, should be left free to decide for ourselves how, or even if, our homes should be protected or improved.

As for the puppy dragnet, it will soon be over, and the proponents will feel they have won. But, in winning the battle, they will have lost the war, for it will be a long time before the images of the city council and the police department are restored. The residents of Livermore and other nearby communities will not soon forget the tactics employed and the misuse of the Explorer Scouts to carry them out.

There are those city officials who scream "Paranoid" when we object to their flagrant abuse of power. Officials who are not, by the way, medically qualified to make such a diagnosis! They would be wise to discontinue public use of the word.

Nevertheless, under their definition of the word paranoid, that is, anyone who voices objections to the way they are being governed, we are, this year, celebrating the 200th anniversary of the dream of a group of paranoids, Thomas Jefferson, et al. A dream which is slowly fading as we allow our liberty to slip away, and we find ourselves in the ever - tightening grip of government control.

We have only ourselves to blame, however, for the vast majority of us are guilty of an apathetic attitude toward all levels of government. How many of us are registered to vote? And, how many of us registered voters even bother to go to the polls at election time? And, perhaps worst of all, how many of us who do vote, know and understand the issues and candidates as we mark our ballots?

In the past, we have failed to keep a watchful eye on what our elected officials were doing. In the future, it would be well for all of us to remember something that Thomas Jefferson, the author of the Declaration of Independence, once said. He put it squarely on our shoulders with, "The price of liberty is eternal vigilance!"

Sacto flop

The full time "professional" Legislature has turned into a "year around flop." That is the view of Senator Randolph Collier, the legislative dean who has served in the State Senate since 1939, longer than any other person in history. Busily campaigning for yet another term, he will introduce a constitutional change next year to restore the "citizen - legislator" concept which was in force until 1967. At that time a ballot measure was approved providing for annual sessions and was expanded in 1972 to two year continuous sessions.

"I am going to author a constitutional amendment to limit the sessions to 120 days each year, one year for budgeting and one for general law," Collier disclosed. "I am making this a campaign issue for the simple reason the full time sessions not only aren't working but they are getting the representatives further and further away from the people."

Pointing out "the continuous sessions make it impossible for members to spend the time at home necessary to keep in tune with the desires of their constituents," he said, "We are forgetting who is important and getting bogged down in a morass of do-good proposals and losing sight of the real problems."

"Equally important is that we have precluded ourselves from the opportunity to sit back and give the meaningful studies to problems which we formerly did through interim committees. The result is we find ourselves snowed under with half - baked proposals dreamed up by legislative interns. Most of these bills would never have gotten into print if they had been given proper airing at interim hearings when there is adequate time for all viewpoints to be heard."

Not mentioned by Collier but complained about by observers is that the full time sessions are converting the representatives into a body of "professionals" with little or no achievements in private enterprise in their own communities. This is becoming the case as young legislative interns, with no experience other than a year or two as a legislative aide, win election to office. Those more highly qualified, and thus more desirable as representatives, find the demands of continuous sessions too burdensome.

That is the reason Senator Donald L. Grunsky, a brilliant trial lawyer, is retiring. He came to the Legislature in 1947 as an Assemblyman. At the time sessions were held for about five months every other year. This allowed him to maintain his law practice. The expansion into year around sessions forced Grunsky to quit. It is also the reason Senator Clare Berryhill, a successful rancher and family man, is quitting after only one term. He had served one term in the Assembly back in 1969 but has found too much change since then. Told of Collier's proposal he said, "If the sessions were only 120 days I'd be happy to continue indefinitely."

Berryhill isn't the only one enthusiastic about Collier's plan. An informal survey among lobbyists found unanimous support. As one put it, "If the Legislature doesn't place Collier's amendment on the ballot, we'll walk the streets to put it there by initiative."

Another agreed with Collier's view that the sessions have become "a year around flop." "All it has done," he said, "is create more confusion. The logjams are worse than ever and bill hijacking has made the whole process a joke. We were far better off under the old system. At least then when you killed a bill you knew you would have a couple of years respite."

For Sunday, Aug. 29, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
This should be a reasonably gainful day, but don't go in expecting too much or you're apt to be disappointed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
If you make a bargain today, be sure to honor the terms fully. Hard feelings could result if you only partially comply.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
What you do today you'll do well, but you're not likely to do all you intended. Don't leave tasks half-finished.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
There are many things you can do today that will cost little or nothing. Don't pursue expensive pleasure.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Be careful today. Your partiality will be showing. Try to treat everyone equally so you don't hurt someone needlessly.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
It's best to keep to yourself today. Unkind thoughts about an acquaintance. Don't let her get to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
A pal who is a poor risk may want to borrow something today. It's best that you tactfully refuse.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Being overly concerned with your interests will be self-defeating today. Look out for the other guy and he'll look out for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Take care of important matters early, while you're fresh and alert. Toward evening you may suddenly run out of steam.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Have fun with your friends today, but skirt financial or business issues. Those areas present problems.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Your goals will be achieved today. You rely solely upon yourself. Half-interested associates will prove a detriment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
You're very clever today, but you won't act on your ideas unless someone else takes the initiative. Be a self-starter.

Your Birthday
Aug. 29, 1976

The year may hold some pleasant and unusual surprises for you that could lead you to paths you've never trod before. Don't be afraid to explore the new and different.

Toronto wins crown, 3-0

SEATTLE — Eusebio boomed home a direct free kick in the first half and his Toronto teammates added two more goals in the second half to take a 3-0 victory over the Minnesota Kicks Saturday in Soccer Bowl '76, the North American Soccer League championship.

The Metros, playing before a record championship game crowd of 25,765 in the Kingdome and a national television audience, became the 10th different NASL champion in as many years.

Eusebio, at 34, the old man on the Toronto team which battled through three playoff games in seven days to reach the title game, scored his free kick at 40:28. He was a doubtful starter only two days ago after suffering an injury to his right foot in the Metro's 2-0 Atlantic Conference title game against defending league champion Tampa Bay Tuesday night.

Toronto, the Atlantic Conference champion, finished with 17 shots-on-goal to Minnesota's 15.

Minnesota, the Pacific Conference champion, entered the game a slight favorite because of its youth, speed and explosive offense.

The Kicks scored 54 goals in 24 regular season games and had won 10 of their last 11 games entering the championship contest.

Stanley stops Blue's no-hit bid

OAKLAND — Mickey Stanley said it didn't give him any special satisfaction. And Vida Blue claimed it hardly bothered him.

Moments before, Stanley, the veteran Detroit Tiger first baseman, had deprived Blue of his second solo career no-hitter with a 370-foot homer over the left field fence with one out in the ninth inning as 9252 fans looked on at the Coliseum here yesterday.

Since the blast did little but give Stanley his fourth home run of the year and alter the final score of the Oakland A's win to 5-2, Blue was sullenly unperturbed after his victory.

"I was just cruisin' along," he said. "Once you've pitched a no-hitter, it's no fun to do it again. It takes too much out of you to think about it, anyway."

Blue, who fired a no-hit, no-run late in the 1970 season against Minnesota and then it was, apparently, an error."

Elementary, my dear Vida.

Oakland led all the way, scrambling for its initial pair of runs in the bottom of the first inning.

North grounded Detroit starter Dave Roberts' first pitch through short for a single and went to third moments later after a steal and a wild throw by Wockenfuss. He scored on Campaneris' 240-foot sacrifice pop up, when right fielder Rusty Staub's throw was nowhere near in time or on target.

Don Baylor, grazed by a Roberts offering to tie the Oakland hit-by-pitch record of twelve — held by Gene Tenace and Reggie Jackson, also gained third on a throwing error when Roberts' pick-off try ended up in the Tiger bullpen.

Baylor trotted home when Rudi dropped a shallow single in front of the lumbering Staub.

The A's got the remainder of their runs before Detroit made the slightest dent in Blue's five-strikeout defense. With one out in the seventh, Willie Horton and Ron LeFlore watched Phil Garner's drive to left center bounce in front of them and into the bleachers for a ground rule double.

Garner scored on a single by Campaneris, who in turn scored along with Don Baylor on a double inside the third base bag by Rudi to complete the A's scoring.

Detroit got a couple of breaks from the left side of the Oakland infield to score its first run. Sal Bando bobbled Aurelio Rodriguez' grounder to third, then threw high to first for a two-base error. Then came the controversial grounder by Wockenfuss.

The stocky young receiver ripped one through the legs of Campaneris and it was several minutes before Campy was charged with the error. The play put Rodriguez on third, from whence he scored on a broken-bat grounder to Blue by streaking Mike Wagner.

Today, colorful rookie Mark Fidrych (15-5) returns to the site of his major league debut to face Oakland's Mike Torrez (10-10).

Taiwan swimmers

They're a long way from home

Communicating with most swimmers at last weekend's Far West Age Group Swim Championships in Concord was no problem.

Then there was this squad from Taiwan. And although they could not speak English, a translator informed us the team was not too distraught about being as far from the team championship as Concord is from Taiwan.

Fifteen hours separated Concord and their home city Taipei. According to the spokesman, Mr. Liu Chyi, this aspect caused many swimmers to perform at less than full capabilities.

"Our first problem was the lag time," spoke Chyi of the 17 entrants.

Of these, three participants had hoped to go to Canada. Chyi explained the swimmers dilemma.

"Our swimmers wanted to go," he began. "But they didn't want to without a name." Canada had told Taiwan they could not use their own flag, thus the People's Republic of China went home.

One of the swimmers, Wang Ching-Chun, had been working with the rest of the Olympic hopefuls, who were training in America since last November. He viewed the countries different swimming philosophies.

"Here the coach sets up a workout schedule for the season," said the 17-year-old. He added the rapport between coach and swimmer is much more positive towards the swimmer.

Ching-Chun, like many of the older competitors, began swimming competitively at around the age of 12-13. It's changed now. "Now we start at eight years old," said Chyi, pointing at the youngest team member.

Lee Yue-Hwan, 17, said she felt the biggest difference was in the training programs. "The training is pretty hard here," nodded the slender female. "It's pretty hard back home but there are different standards."

Hsu Yue-Yun, a hopeful in the 200 Individual Medley, here at the meet, but never reached the finals, was anything but annoyed with her efforts, but instead was happy with the whole trip. She, along with the other two, realized they were tired and had peaked themselves for the Olympics.

Joining the Taiwanese on their trip home will be fond memories and new training methods. Already in Taipei there are a few who have adopted a swimming hero. One such is Yue-Yun's brother Ton-Hsiung.

"My brother at home has a dream. He wants to be uh, Spitz. Yea, he dreams of being Mark Spitz."

Rooker stops SF with 3-hitter

PITTSBURGH — Pittsburgh erupted for seven runs in the first inning and Jim Rooker stopped San Francisco on three hits as the Pirates coasted to a 7-1 victory over the Giants Saturday night.

John D'Aquisto, 3-8, was the victim of the Pirates' early assault, giving up six runs before he was relieved by Charlie Williams, who allowed one run before he could get the side out.

Dave Parker's two-run double started the scoring following a single by Frank Taveras and a pair of walks.

Rooker, 11-7, had excellent control, mixing a fast ball with sharp breaking pitches to keep the Giants off balance.

Asbury Methodist

LIVERMORE — The 9 a.m. worship service for Asbury United Methodist Church will begin with a sharing of the Sacrament of Communion, followed by a pancake breakfast at which the congregation will learn of plans for the church's Hunger Task Force.

Asbury plans to join hundreds of other United Methodist churches from Northern California and Nevada in "Round-up '76" at the Pleasanton Fairgrounds Oct. 16. Beef and dairy cattle, goats, sheep and rabbits will arrive at the fairgrounds when members of these churches assemble for a day of study, fellowship and discussion on how to relieve the hunger that afflicts much of the world.

All of the livestock will be shipped to locations throughout the world where it will be used to improve the quality of life. Asbury has set its goal of raising funds for two heifers and 400 chicks.

John Knox Presbyterian

DUBLIN — Three important celebrations will dignify today's 9:30 a.m. service at John Knox United Presbyterian Church, 7421 Amarillo Road, including the Sacrament of Baptism, the reception of new members and the ordination — installation of a deacon.

The Rev. Griffes will address the congregation on the theme of "Interruptions" and how aggravating daily disturbances can become the means of grace within the Christian faith.

A preschool class for children three to five years old meets during worship, and child care is provided for infants and toddlers.

Sunday school classes for all ages of children, youth and adults recommence Sunday, Sept. 12. For further information on the Christian Education program, contact the church office at 828-1846. Mrs. Peggy Despotakis is the Christian education coordinator for the church.

St. Clare Episcopal

PLEASANTON — The Rev. Susan Bergmans, deputy vicar, completes her series of talks on the theme of being fed by God at today's 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. services for St. Clare's Episcopal Church, 339 Rose Ave.

Holy Communion from the Book of Common Prayer, using the reserved Sacrament, is included in both services, with lay reader Ralph Calabrese assisting.

The church school teachers will assemble Wednesday, Sept. 1 at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Robert Wakeling. Registration for church school is set Sept. 12, with classes beginning Sept. 19.

Adult Bible study is scheduled Thursdays at 1 p.m. and at 7:30 p.m. beginning Sept. 16. Persons interested in these groups may contact The Rev. Bergmans.

Women's Aglow

PLEASANTON — Miss Judith Giles, an ordained minister of the gospel, will address the Sept. 1 meeting of the Women's Aglow Fellowship at the Vineyard Mobil Villa Recreation Center, 3263 Vineyard Ave.

A continental breakfast is served at 9:30 a.m. with the meeting scheduled at 10 o'clock.

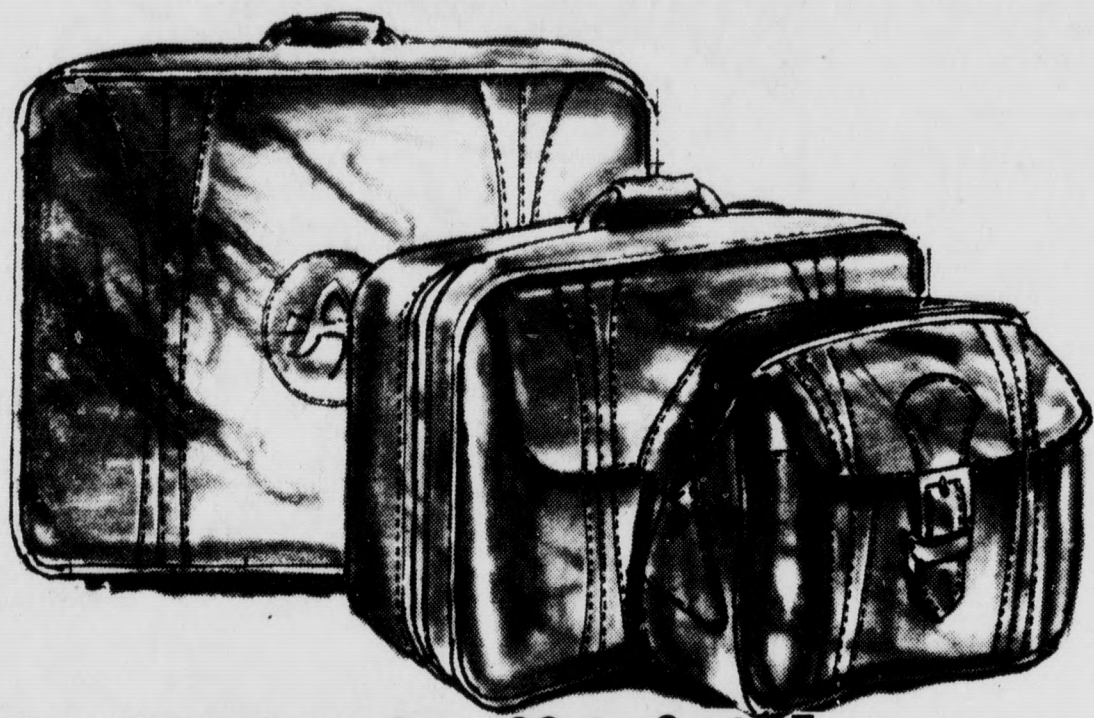

Women's Aglow is an interdenominational group of Christian women interested in learning more about the Christian faith through sharing and special programs. For more information contact Vivian Terry at 846-9229 or Sharon Schrietz at 443-4912.

Sunol's Little Brown Church

SUNOL — This morning's service at the Little Brown Church of Sunol has been changed to 10 a.m. until further notice. The sermon today is entitled "Do Justice."

New Vicar for Trinity Lutheran

PLEASANTON — Trinity Lutheran Church will install its new vicar, Jack Schieman, at the 9:30 a.m. service today. He will deliver his initial sermon at both the 8 a.m. and 9:30 a.m. worship services, with a coffee reception in his honor at the parish hall after the last service.

The church is located at the corner of Hopyard Road and Del Valle Parkway.

Mr. Schieman, a native of Ontario, Canada, will spend his year-long vicarage working part-time with the Pleasanton parish, and part-time with patients at Vesper Memorial Hospital in San Leandro. He will then return to complete his last year of study at the Concordia Seminary-in-Exile, St. Louis, Mo.

The Trinity Lutheran board of education convenes Monday, Aug. 30.

Beginning Sept. 5 the parish returns to its regular Sunday schedule: first service at 8 a.m., Sunday school at 9:15 a.m., and late service at 10:30 a.m. Children four months to six years old will be cared for during the late service at a nursery for Sundays through June, 1977.

Opposition to junior high

This is one of a series of articles concerning seventh - eighth grade housing in the Murray School District and attendant enrollment and construction problems.

One of the residual phenomena of posing junior high use for a particular school is the backlash of resentment that surfaces.

Many residents, and they are not limited to those around Murray district schools, are fearful of what junior high-age youngsters will "bring" to the neighborhood.

Many more believe that seventh and eighth graders should not be on the same campus as primary and middle grade (grades 4-6) students.

In the Murray district, three such campuses are in existence — Donlon, Nielsen and Dublin.

A Murray board of trustees several years ago committed the district to a preferred organizational setup of K-6 and 7-8 schools.

But given the enrollment declines, particularly of the Dublin schools, of recent years, the "ideal" is much easier said than done.

The question put to district residents almost a month ago, in the form of a survey mailed out by Applied Technology (from the Murray district office), asked whether the status quo should be maintained or one or more schools converted to seventh - eighth grade use.

The very same question was put to district teachers earlier in the summer and they favored conversion (63 per cent conversion, 31 per cent status quo, 6 per cent no opinion).

Further work toward a recommendation on the subject of housing of seventh and eighth graders will be forthcoming at the Citizens Advisory Committee meeting of Sept. 1 at Frederiksen School.

As speculated earlier, the committee could recommend the board convert one or more schools — possibly Dublin and/or Frederiksen — to solely seventh - eighth grade use. Such a move would push Murray closer to the K-6 and 7-8 ideal.

It would also cause more busing and, possibly, strengthen the backlash of residents who don't care for junior high students in an area that was formerly K-6. Residents-In-Action, the Dublin School area group, formed in opposition to conversion of Dublin to junior high grades. Several have voiced the feeling they would be losing a "good neighborhood school" if Dublin was picked for conversion.

The CAC will thrash this problem along with a host of others at their Sept. 1 gathering.

Mori youth bill slips by senate

Pleasanton Assemblyman Floyd Mori saw his bill to help Youth Authority graduates become eligible for police jobs pass the State Senate by the skin of its teeth this week.

The Senate deadlocked on AB 1713 and the tie was broken by Lieutenant Governor Mervyn Dymally's vote. It was the first tie vote in the Senate this year. The bill will make persons honorably discharged from the Youth Authority eligible for employment by the Youth Authority as peace officers.

"AB 1713 recognizes the unique insight and understanding that a rehabilitated delinquent can bring to bear upon the problems of youth experiencing the same problems he did," said Mori.

"Currently Youth Authority discharges are not eligible for employment as peace officers by any public agency. This bill makes an exception where it is clear the results will be beneficial."

The measure is headed for the governor's desk for signature.

Mori this week also issued an endorsement for construction of a new Dumbarton Bridge, commenting favorably on the Assembly's approval of SB 1975 which would accomplish that construction.

"The present bridge is 50 years old. It's narrow, rickety, and generally unsafe," said Mori.

The Legislature voted construction of a new Dumbarton Bridge in 1972. However, construction was subject to the approval of sites for the bridge's western approaches by Atherton, Palo Alto, and Menlo Park. Those communities have not approved the approaches and construction has not begun.

SB 1975 would eliminate the need for the approval of those communities if Governor Brown signs the bill into law.

Defense of tree care

PLEASANTON — Street tree watering has been adequate considering the appearance of the city's trees and city crew workloads in all phases of park and street tree maintenance, Director of Public Works Field Services Arnold Eaton told the city council in a report last week.

Eaton's report came in response to Councilman William Herlihy's concern over dead trees along Foothill Road and Hopyard Road.

Eaton's report said that eight trees were lost along the frontage of Foothill High School, but the reason was poor soil conditions for the bare root trees.

On Hopyard Road trees north of Inglewood Drive purchased by the Trees for Pleasanton Committee have done well except for vandalism and a few damaged by vehicle accidents.

Magnolia trees planted at Valley Avenue and Black Avenue have done poorly and probably won't survive, said Eaton. They were replacement trees planted due to public pressure in August and were too large for transplanting, he said.

During 1974 the Trees for Pleasanton Committee received contributions from citizens for the purchase and planting of 240 trees along major thoroughfares leading into Pleasanton. These trees were planted by street crews in January, 1975.

A survey of the trees in June of this year indicated that 217 of the 243 trees have survived.

Sixteen of the 143 trees planted on Hopyard Road died, victims of vandals. Two of 48 trees on Valley Avenue died as did eight of 26 planted on Foothill Road. All 26 planted on Santa Rita survive, despite vandalism to 10 trees.

The Rotary Club donated funds to buy 46 London Plane Sycamores planted around the Civic Center and only 23 have survived. Twelve were destroyed by vandals on June 27.

Tot lot installation scheduled this week

PLEASANTON — Hansen Park Tot Lot equipment will be installed this week, Recreation Director Robert Caporusso told the park and recreation commission last week.

Councilman Frank Brandes asked the staff Monday night at the city council meeting why the equipment, which had arrived several weeks ago from the manufacturer, had not been installed yet. He was told that staff vacations had cut personnel to the point where installation had to be delayed.

Picnic tables at Muirwood Park, donated by the Stoneridge Homeowners Association, also will be installed this week, said Caporusso.

Commissioners also agreed to explore the possibility of leasing the cavernous Camp Parks gym for adult basketball, volleyball and youth gymnastics purposes. If Pleasanton leases the facility, it would do so in partnership with Livermore Area Recreation and Park District, Chabot College valley campus, and Valley Community Community Services District. The lease cost to be shared by the four agencies would be $6,000 per year, half of it payable each half year.

The commission's three attending members decided that in the future there will be no more August meetings so the entire commission membership can take its vacation without hurting commission attendance. If something urgent comes up, the commissioners are willing to convene a special meeting, they said.

Commissioners Jerry Wifley, Kathy O'Brien and Hank Gomez were present last week; Howard Garrigan and Chuck Gielow were absent.

Commission's trip to the park

PLEASANTON — Park and Recreation commissioners agreed to take one grand field trip through all city parks some Saturday before their September meeting to see all of the small things that need improvements.

The commissioners made the promise after Park Supervisor Phil Hallock gave them a park by park report on the condition of turf and related items in all parks.

At the September meeting, they will talk about what they saw and pass priorities on to the city council.

They also suggested that the staff write to the Pleasanton National and American Little Leagues, requesting that they come to the next park and recreation meeting. The amateur sports people are engaged in a few turf improvement projects of their own at Youth Sports Park and they haven't given notice of their work to the staff. It's a city park and the staff is supposed to be notified of any and all amateur work at the park.

The commissioners tabled discussion of banning model airplanes in all city parks, hoping to have a full commission next month to deal with it. Commissioners Howard Garrigan and Chuck Gielow, Jr., were absent. Commissioner Jerry Wifley said he would not favor banning the models in all parks because it would remove a recreation outlet.

The commission also approved a staff recommendation that the city spend $55,000 cash, perhaps $8,000 in in-kind labor contributions, for a total of $63,000 in seed money to obtain three times that amount for Youth Sports Project from a state land and water conservation fund.

The commission also endorsed allocation of $12,500 seed money for each of two parks, Vintage Hills Park and Mission Hills Park, in order to get three times as much money from the same state fund for each park.

Post for SR candidate

Alameda County Bureau BERKELEY — San Ramon Valley supervisorial candidate Louise Giersch, an outspoken advocate of continued feeder bus service to the valley and eastern Contra Costa County, has been elected chairwoman of the Bay Area wide Metropolitan Transportation Committee by fellow committeemen.

The former Antioch City Councilwoman and Mayor is the Association of Bay Area Governments (ABAG) representative to the MTC. She represents Contra Costa County cities on the ABAG board and last year served as MTC vice-chairwoman. She succeeds Santa Clara County representative John C. Beckett.

She has received Governor's appointments to the State Commission on Seismic Safety and Board of Directors of the League of California Cities.

She serves on the Contra Costa County Comprehensive Health Planning Board, Emergency Medical Care Commission and is the first woman to have served as the chairwoman of the Contra Costa County Mayor's Conference.

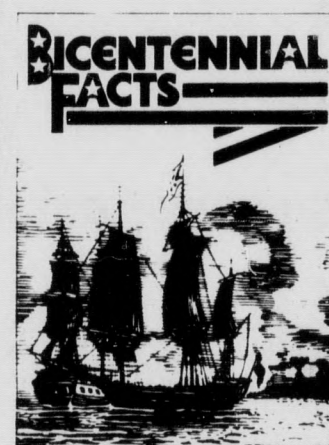

She received a bachelors degree in chemistry from the University of Colorado in 1948 and is a pilot.

MTC directors also elected Marin County representative Al Gatov as vice-chairman to succeed Giersch.

Gatov, a private transportation consultant who has served on the board since 1972, also has a background of Governor's appointments to special commissions, including the Bay Area Rapid Transit District Study Commission in 1963-65 when the district first was formed, and the State Public Utilities Commission from 1965-70.

MTC directors also established a steering committee for reports to the State Legislature on a bill to extend the half-cent sales tax in the three BART counties.

The committee will form a policy board chaired by Alameda County Supervisor Joseph Bort with members from the BART, AC

BICENTENNIAL FACTS
The American colonies during the Revolutionary War were geographically similar to present-day Chile — that is, a narrow coastal strip extending 1,000 miles. What would have been a significant British advantage — control of the seas and easy maneuverability toward any rebel concentration — was offset by the lack of any single strategic center of the revolutionary movement to focus on. To win, the World Almanac notes, it would have been necessary for the British to physically control virtually the entire seaboard.

USDA ASKS CONSUMERS TO CHECK HOME
CANNED ITEMS:

WASHINGTON - Mrs. Nancy Harvey Steorts, special assistant for consumer affairs to the secretary of agriculture, urges consumers to check home canned items carefully before using them. She emphasizes that this is a measure which should ordinarily be taken by all home canners. It deserves special attention, however, because an estimated 6 million Americans tried home gardening in 1975, and many of them home canning for the first time.

According to Mrs. Steorts, when using home canned items examine each jar closely. A bulge or leak means that the seal is broken and the food has spoiled. Or upon opening the jar, spurting liquid, off odor or mold indicate spoilage. Food that appears too soft or mushy may be spoiled. Don't use such food and be sure to destroy it so animals, children or even adults do not inadvertently eat some of it.

Even if all looks well, cautions Mrs. Steorts, never taste home-canned foods right out of the jar. Bring vegetables to a rolling boil, then cover and boil for at least 10 minutes. Boil meats and poultry covered for 20 minutes. Heating usually makes any odor of spoilage more evident.

The above information, along with additional advice from Mrs. Steorts, is available in leaflet form at your nearby Safeway. Come pick up your free copy. No purchase necessary.

Items and prices in this ad are available August 29, 1976 thru August 31, 1976 at all Safeway Stores in the following counties: * Solano, Napa, Sonoma, Marin, Contra Costa, Alameda, San Francisco, San Mateo, Monterey and Santa Cruz. * Prices not effective in Vacaville and Fairfield. Less than a decade ago, Red Carpet was organized by a group of brokers who found that they could better serve their clients by pooling their efforts. Through Advertising and their referral service, these brokers established a reputation for high standards and professionalism.

The Red Carpet ideal has grown to include almost 700 offices, coast to coast. Almost $1 billion worth of houses are handled by Red Carpet every year.

A large organization is effective but Red Carpet recognizes the need for locally owned and managed offices. People sell houses and Red Carpet's brokers are committed to their respective communities.

Red Carpet's national organization enables their staff to receive the best training available. Local ownership allows Red Carpet to maintain a sensitivity to the needs of people and their communities. The record shows that people can put their trust in the Red Carpet broker to sell their houses "painlessly" and at the same time make relocation comfortable.

Harris Realty welcome

The grand opening of Harris Realty's new office in the Val Vista Shopping Center was held the end of July. Champagne and hors d'oeuvres were served to the many well-wishers who attended. The gala occasion was highlighted with a drawing of a color television set. The winners of the grand prize were Mr. and Mrs. Lewis of the Val Vista area in Pleasanton.

For dining out

La Rochelle, one of Pleasanton's better restaurants is new, but not for sale. It's a place to stop when you need a break from house-hunting. Polly Simpson and Judy Esco, waitresses at La Rochelle, invite you to drop in Tuesday through Sunday for lunch or dinner. A strolling fashion show is featured each Wednesday and those sauces are something, according to owner and chef Jerry Bindi. The place is located at 348 St. Mary St.

Sales optimist

Here's an optimist about the home mortgage situation in the valley. He's Melvin Killin, manager of Franklin Savings and Loan, 561 Main St., Pleasanton. "The valley home market is extremely strong and mortgage monies are certainly available. We at Franklin Savings are actively seeking single family home mortgages," said Killin. "Come into our Main Street office and let us help you with competitive rates and personalized service."

Tips, warnings in real estate

Al Walberg of Osborne Realty offers some advice to those selling or buying property.

Red Carpet's new Livermore home open

The little residence located at 1858 Fourth St., Livermore, stood quietly and seldom noticed by the many people that passed that way until February of this year when it was transformed into a sparkling red and white structure which became the home of a new Red Carpet Realtors office.

Owner and broker John Gumm says he is well pleased with his staff and the continuous increase in business.

There are many pleasant comments about his new office. One client said, "We wanted to stop because your office looked so friendly."

John would like you to meet his staff, secretary Kathy McCusker, salespeople Bus Flanagan, Chuck White, Petty Dortch, Ten Payne, Jerry Butler, Pat Casey, Cliff Andrews, Lyman Harms, Al Hughes and Tom Libert.

It's certainly tempting to try eliminating the "outrageously" high 6 per cent real estate commission by doing the selling of your own home.

In most cases, the selling of a home is a cooperative effort on the part of at least four individuals at 1½ per cent apiece to comprise the 6 per cent brokerage fee (listing broker, listing salesperson, selling broker, selling salesperson, etc.). Also, there are several other ingredients and details to a successful sale to consider:

Appraisal — Do you know what your property is really worth in today's market, or will you price it too high and discourage potential buyers?

Advertising — Do you know what features to advertise? Can you write the type of ads that will attract qualified prospects?

Prospects — Do you have a list of prospects and access to numerous buyers?

Merchandising — Can you show other houses as comparables?

Salesmanship — Are you familiar with the techniques of selling real estate? Have you the ability and skill necessary to make a sale?

Showing — Can you show your property as effectively as a realtor? Are you prepared to expose your family to any stranger who knocks on the door to see your house?

Selling — Are you available to prospects 365 days a year?

Objections — Can you answer objections and criticisms without losing your temper?

Follow-up — Do you have the time to call back on prospects without placing yourself in a poor bargaining position to negotiate an offer?

Legal — Have you the professional skill necessary to draw all the contracts? Do you have ready access to legal assistance in closing the sale?

Financing — Are you familiar with today's financing? Do you have several sources of financing? Do you have an outlet for Second Deeds of Trust?

Trade-ins — Can you take another house as a trade-in?

Time — Do you have the time to handle all these details?

In addition to the above factors, probably the most difficult to overcome is the reluctance of the part of most buyers to deal directly with the owner, feeling that the seller "knows" what he is doing, while he, the buyer, is completely naive on the subject.

Covered Wagon Realty has welcomed a new associate to the firm, Marie Cree, pictured above.

House ideas attract real estate woman

Not just another pretty face. A newcomer to the world of real estate, Marie Cree more than compensates by her desire and enthusiasm. A Livermore resident for more than five years, married to husband Alfred, Marie took the challenge because she "wanted to be her own boss since it's more interesting and also rewarding."

Of course working at Covered Wagon gives Marie a chance to work with one of the most knowledgeable real estate men in the area, Bob Williford. Since Marie is basically a curious person she "likes to look at other people's houses, which gives me ideas about what I could do for my house!"

So stop on by and say hello to Marie and the rest of the crew at Covered Wagon, located at 2115 First Street in Livermore.

Dublin, San Ramon area

Realty firm grew with area

There is not only growth in Dublin - San Ramon but in the Valley Realty organization as well. Jerry Moon, manager of Valley Realty's Dublin office, is shown in front of a 1963 aerial photo of this area. His office is the oldest most active real estate office in the Dublin - San Ramon area and was established in 1965.

It was indeed something less than an auspicious beginning eleven years ago for the Valley Realty owners, Henry Cupples and Frank Straface. Starting on a shoestring in Dublin, the two Valley residents have built their firm to over 350 employees and more than 23 offices in California.

In 1971, seeing the need for providing the consumer with more innovative and consumer programs, Valley Realty merged with Berg Enterprises, Inc., a New Jersey based full service real estate company that's publicly owned and actively traded on the American Stock Exchange.

Having always been involved in the community certainly attributed to Valley's success but consistently striving to provide innovative services for the home buying and selling public has kept them leaders in their field. An example of Valley's awareness of consumer concern was when, in 1973, Valley Realty started providing a one-year warranty on every home they listed that covered the major systems of the home including the plumbing, heating, electrical, hot water heater and furnace system along with the major built-in appliances.

"Serving the public to the fullest also means you must be convenient," says Straface, "and therefore, we have tried to locate our offices in strategic locations throughout the Bay Area." Valley's current expansion plans call for an additional office in San Mateo county along with extensive remodeling and relocating of many of the existing offices. One such relocation will soon take place in Dublin when Valley moves to its new location at 7665 Amador Valley Blvd. This new location will be the first of the new image being adopted by all the Berg Enterprise companies along with its new affiliate members in "The Real Estate Place."

Valley's affiliation with Berg Enterprises and The Real Estate Place provides Valley residents with coverage "nation-wide" for the sale of their homes along with the "helping hand" that is so desperately needed when moving.

Red Carpet boasts of associate

The people at Red Carpet Realty on L Street in Livermore are proud of co-worker Pete Cornett.

A former life insurance representative and long-time resident of Livermore, Pete joined the Red Carpet team less than a year ago. In the short time he has sold and closed more than $2 million in real estate.

His outstanding performance exemplifies the Red Carpet spirit. When you list your home with Red Carpet, you have professionals like Pete working consistently and enthusiastically to sell your home or to help you relocate.

If you want quick results, list your home with RED CARPET.

away to a strange neighborhood.

"The Amador Valley residents have been good to Valley Realty," says Henry Cupples, "and our over 250 sales associates have tried to return the support and confidence by providing the finest real estate services available anywhere." I guess that's why at Valley Realty, people serving people is more than just a motto.

found her work in real estate to be challenging and rewarding.

She truly enjoys people, and whether it's listing or selling, she always takes a personal interest and works hard to make sure each client is happy.

Because of this she has taken part in well over three-quarters of a million dollars in Real Estate transactions in the last four months.

Pat has lived with her husband, Ron, and children Mike and Marna, in Livermore for more than nine years. Pat and Ron both find Livermore a very picturesque and pleasant place to live and raise their family.

In her few moments away from real estate, she spends time playing tennis, waterskiing and camping. When it comes to cooking, oriental food is her specialty.

Pat knows the values of real estate in all areas of Livermore as well as other parts of the valley. She always finds time to explain or answer any questions thoroughly and knows the facts when it comes to real estate.

Miniature carousel making

Unique show set for Sept. 4

The history of the carousel, or merry-go-round, can be traced back more than 16 centuries.

In the days of heraldry, such devices for amusement were considered by many to be instruments of the devil.

For this reason, California's Peggy Caso mounts the head of a dragon on top of each of the miniature carousels, which she and her husband make and sell.

In so doing, she also conforms to the theory that you can make a thing of beauty more beautiful by placing something ugly next to it.

George Caso, her husband, does most of the wood work, and Peggy helps decorate the miniature merry-go-rounds, using bits of ribbons, pieces of mirror, and many hues of bright paint.

But the real interest the mini-go-rounds hold for Peggy Caso are the horses.

She makes the horses, herself, drawing upon a lifetime of drawing, painting, and studying horses.

Born and raised in Santa Cruz County, California, she became interested in horses at an early age.

Her art teachers in school encouraged her to draw and paint them.

She and her husband became interested in miniatures in Oregon. Dissatisfied with the plastic toys that were available, one Christmas, they made all of the toys for their eight children.

Two of the Christmas presents they made were doll houses and the furnishings for them. That started them.

They made their first mini carousel, when they moved back to California.

The carousel, itself, is constructed mostly of wood and metal rods. Each is mounted on a small turntable so that it will revolve.

The design of the original carousel didn't just happen. They did a great deal of research and reading, studying books, magazines, and drawings.

Their initial carousel was a two-story one, a simple design to display the horses being made by Peggy.

The Casos are working now on a miniature steam-powered carousel, which they hope to market soon.

"Actually, the design of a carousel is relatively simple," Peggy told Small Talk.

"They almost all consist of a floor, a center structure, and a top.

"It's the decorations, the paint, and, of course, the animals that make them different."

George uses two circles of wood and scroll-cut center pieces for the basic structure.

Each horse is individually made. They are numbered and signed by Peggy, who has found that they are being collected.

She uses Sculpey clay to make the horses, pointing out that it is easy to work with and can be fired at a relatively low temperature in a kitchen oven.

Until she lost it, her favorite tool was a rectal thermometer.

Now, she uses a toothpick and an eyebrow pencil.

When fired, Peggy hand paints each horse, using acrylic paints. Each horse is mounted on a brass rod, which can be used to display it or inserted into the floor of the carousel.

Although each of the animals is made individually, she adheres to several basic designs.

These now include a lead horse, a king's horse, and a running horse.

Eventually, Peggy hopes to prepare the horses on special order, relating the design and color to the taste and personality of the individual.

Shown recently at a Southern California miniature show, the horses and carousel became an almost instantaneous show stopper.

"There are so many different directions one can go in the field of miniatures," Peggy said.

"The carousel, and all that goes along with it, is a challenge. And it's different."

"We decided to start with that challenge and see how far we can take it."

However, she admits that they have other ideas, too.

But, with eight children, she has found that there is only so much time she can devote to the projects.

Great American Land and Development Company

'The Park' offers new Livermore scene

The Great American Land and Development Company has opened a second single family home development in Livermore with the first of 40 units now available in a parkside setting off East Stanley Boulevard. Known as "The Park," there will be only 40 single-story homes built, with prices starting from $47,990. The homes were designed by nationally known architect Paul Thoryk, A.I.A., and were specially adapted to the preferences of Livermore homebuyers, according to William J. Schowrer, Jr., President of the Great American Land and Development Company. "These are fresh, new designs which we are bringing to Livermore with an emphasis on livability," he added.

"The five models at 'The Park' were planned as energy-saving homes, with their heating efficiency engineered to be much greater than homes of comparable size, for example."

Each home at "The Park" is available in two or three exterior treatments that make extensive use of redwood trim and siding. Interiors reflect effective use of space for both convenience and efficiency. The plans are distinguished by having spacious master suites, breakfast nooks, self-cleaning ovens in all-electric kitchens, wall-to-wall shag carpeting and full rear-yard fencing.

Individually, the plans present a wide range of choice for prospective homebuyers. The Daisy Model offers the ideal open design for a growing family; with rear-facing master bedroom, living room and kitchen that offer real privacy. A cheery side-light at the front door welcomes visitors to a tiled entryway.

The three-bedroom Plan Two is available in two versions. The Marigold Model has an exciting side entry that leads into a spacious living room. The roomy kitchen also includes eating space in addition to the formal dining area. The third bedroom can also become a den or study, opening off the separate entry. The alternate version, The Primrose, is designed for the larger family and provides an oversized family room with optional fireplace off the kitchen.

The Sunflower offers a three-bedroom plan with roomy family room. The third bedroom can also be treated as a convenient den, opening off the living area.

In the Poppy, young families have room to grow, with an optional den off the entryway that can serve as a fourth bedroom. The family room with optional fireplace allow access to the outdoors and to back-yard activity through sliding glass doors.

"The Park" is located on the eastern edge of Livermore, right next to the city's Pleasure Island Park, which will remain accessible for recreation to neighborhood families for years. The distance to both Livermore and Pleasanton shopping centers from "The Park" is measured in only minutes.

To reach "The Park" from 580, take Portola Avenue to Murrieta Boulevard. Follow Murrieta to East Stanley Boulevard and then turn right on Stanley to Murdell Lane. Turn left on Murdell and follow to Pearl and "The Park." The sales office will be open daily from 10 a.m. to dusk. Telephone (415) 455-5552.

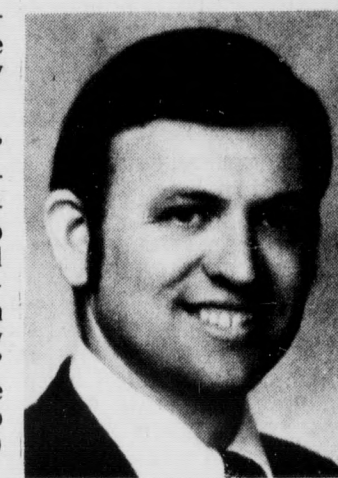

W. T. Goe, above, and his son, Tom Goe, are on an eight-day trip to Lucerne, Switzerland, as a result of winning International Harvester's Western Region Dealership sales contest. More than 20 dealers participated. Goe is the IH dealer in Pleasanton. His son is service manager.

RE network

Harry Regan, President of International Real Estate Network (Western Realty) has announced the opening of two new real estate offices in the Tri-Valley Areas to accompany the present Pleasanton office. Regan, a life-long Valley resident and a graduate of San Jose State University stated, "It is our intention to open our new offices as soon as possible."

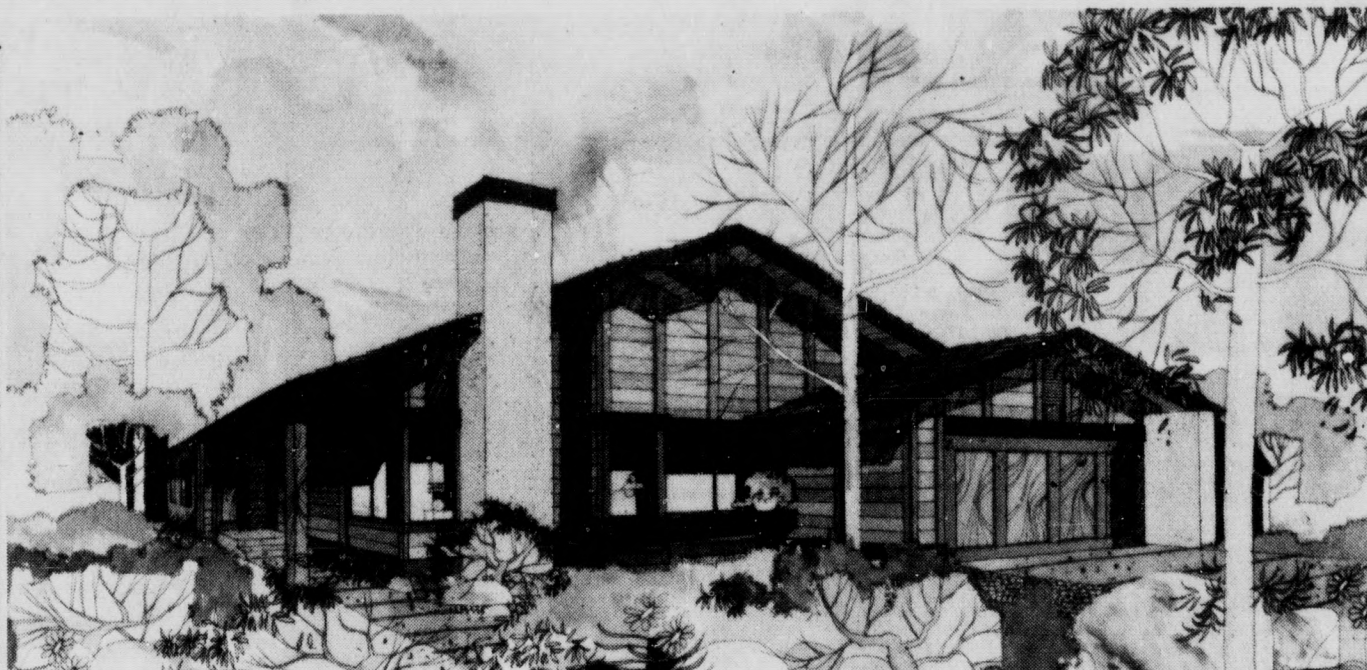

Allied Brokers

The newest associate in sales for the Allied Brokers firm is Fred Staedel, above, who received his real estate license in 1973. Staedel also holds a degree as a landscape architect and has successfully combined this knowledge with his experience in real estate. Staedel and his wife, Carolyn, a sixth grade teacher, live in Pleasanton and are avid flyers.

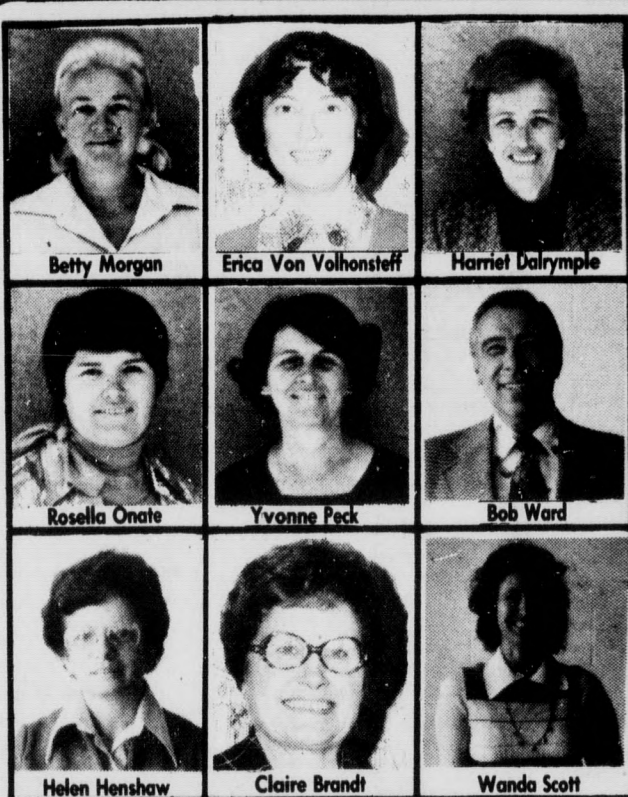

Better Homes

The Dublin office of Better Homes Real Estate announces the newest member of its staff, Mike Hignite who joins a winning team of professional real estate specialists. He brings to the firm and his clients 7 1/2 years experience as manager of credit unions. Hignite and his wife, Judy, and son, Chris, reside in Pleasanton. Hignite also serves as a referee for Pleasanton soccer.

This three-bedroom Primrose model is one of five single family homes now available at "The Park", the new development in Livermore by Great American Homes, off East Stanley Boulevard on Murdell Lane. Only 40 homes will be built right next to Pleasure Island Park, at prices beginning at $47,900.

Items for home

Lively Ladies and Lovely Antiques. There's always a place (or two or three) in every home that cries out for some special piece of furniture, an unusual "collectible" or unique hand-crafted curio. Valley residents are fortunate in having right in the middle of Pleasanton three shops certain to have just the thing to fill the need. Our montage introduces (clockwise from top left) Sue Hacker of The Caboose, 706 Main St.; Betty Jo Cook of J-J's Antiques, 249 Spring St.; and Ethel Richardson of Gramma's House, 446 St. John St.

Few homes remaining in Pleasanton plan

Fewer than 12 homes remain to be sold in Val Vista, reported Bob Scanlon, project sales manager for Singer Housing Company, as he attributed the single-family home community's tremendous sales success to its convenient Pleasanton location, moderate price range and top quality construction features.

Scanlon explained that three and four bedroom homes in the Creekside Series not only offer residents a natural park setting with a meandering stream but also such premium construction highlights as raised foundations with tongue and groove flooring, and copper plumbing.

Val Vista prices range from $47,950 to $53,450. The popular detached home community, with excellent FHA, VA and conventional financing, is located off Hopyard Road in Pleasanton.

Interiors feature sunken living and/or family rooms (with beamed ceilings in some plans) in a variety of floor plans along with wall-to-wall carpeting in living rooms, hall and all bedrooms; tiled central entry ways, dressing areas and private baths in master suites, cultured marble vanity tops, custom-finished fireplaces in some plans, decorator lighting features and sliding glass doors to private garden areas.

Step-saving kitchens include breakfast nooks, deluxe counter tops, luminous ceilings and such convenient Hotpoint appliances as surface range and oven (double unit in some plans) and food waste disposer.

Set against the Sunol Ridge in the Amador Valley, Val Vista affords a natural environment that matches the beauty of the homes themselves, he noted. "Residents can enjoy nearby recreation facilities for golf, sailing, hiking, swimming and horseback riding or use the conveniently close freeway access to visit major California recreational areas."

Buyers wishing to customize any Val Vista home may choose from optional items that include air conditioning, mirrored wardrobe doors, fireplaces and dishwashers.

To visit Val Vista, drive south to Nimitz Freeway or Interstate 580, then east to the Hopyard Road exit in Pleasanton, turn right and continue to model homes.

NUMBERS . . . NUMBERS . . . NUMBERS . . . NUMBERS

Century 21 has over 2200 independently owned offices. These offices have sales of over $11,000 PER DAY . . . Which breaks down to $23,000 per minute! With the average sales price in the United States of about $40,000, this means that Century 21 sells a home every TWO MINUTES! What does this mean to you? Nothing. Nothing, that is unless it is your home. Century 21 guarantees (Puts in writing!) what they will do for you, to sell you home. No other real estate company dares do that.

Century 21 — with its 2200 plus offices — has the most extensive referral program in the nation. This means buyers going from Century 21 offices in one part of the country to Century 21 offices in your part of the country. If you want to be part of the home sold by Century 21 every TWO MINUTES — call today. Remember—Century 21 puts its promises in writing!
